Killingworth Woman Graduates Lineworker Training at Eversource

By Tricia Taskey Modifica, Eversource Media Relations Manager

Carley Moyher was in graduate school studying to become a speech pathologist when she realized she needed to make a change and pursue a career that would truly make her happy. That's when the 24-year-old began looking into Eversource's Lineworker Certificate Program with Capital Community College.

"The more I thought about it, the more I realized I didn't want to be stuck inside working all day. I love being outside and, growing up, I was always a hands-on kind of person," said Moyher. "My family encouraged me to look into the lineworker program. When I went to the Eversource website and saw they were taking applications, it seemed like the stars aligned."

Moyher recently graduated from the 11-week program, one of four women in the class, and is now on her way to becoming a certified lineworker. "I'm looking forward to a job where no two days are really the same and you're constantly working on different types of jobs, using different skills," added the Killingworth 24-year-old. "Even if the weather is tough to deal with, I would much rather be outside than stuck in an office."

The second class of students in Eversource's Electric Lineworker Program at Capital Community College celebrated their graduation from the program and collected their certificates on June 16, 2022. The diverse class of 15 students includes more women than ever before and represents communities throughout the state. The group is ready to start careers in the electric utility industry right in their own backyard – maintaining and strengthening the electric system, restoring power after storms and helping to build the clean energy grid of the future.

"Many of our lineworkers are reaching retirement age, so there is a true need for qualified workers in the electric operations industry," said Eversource Vice President of Operation Services Steve Driscoll. "It's crucial that we replenish our workforce to maintain a safe and reliable electric system for our customers; our partnership with CCC on this program is an important part of our continued effort to reach out to young people in our Connecticut communities and offer them excellent career opportunities."

While Moyher is joining a trade that's male-dominated, she isn't intimidated. "I think a lot of females aren't aware of this field or of the opportunities in linework. I really wasn't until I talked to friends who were interested. It's really positive that my class had four females graduate," added Moyher. "I'm really excited about the future."

Moyher and the graduates will now begin interviewing for linehelper positions in Eversource's Apprentice School.

9 Town Transit: Big Changes Down the Road

By 9 Town Transit

July 1, 2022 marked the official first day of the merger between 9 Town Transit (9TT) and Middletown Area Transit (MAT). While the districts will become one on this day, there will be some immediate changes, but many more that will be phased in over time.

First and foremost, you will receive the same friendly, timely and safe service you've come to expect. All routes, stops and schedules will remain the same on July 1. Meanwhile, we will continue to work on implementing the service improvements suggested by our bus study, which will include the results of public information and comment sessions now being held.

The 9TT and MAT names, logos and bus designs will remain for now. We are working with a marketing firm to create one new name, logo and design to be revealed this fall. In the meantime, you may occasionally see a blue/green 9TT bus on a Middletown route or a multi-colored MAT bus on a 9TT route.

You can continue to use the PassioGO! or MATBusTracker apps to get real-time bus route information. We will have one app with enhanced features by late fall.

Connecticut's Five Signers of the Declaration of Independence

By Phil Devlin

Connecticut sent four delegates to the Second Continental Congress: Samuel Huntington, Roger Sherman, Oliver Wolcott and William Williams. Only two were present and voted for the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776; all eventually signed it, though it took nearly six months for all 56 signers of the Declaration to put pen and ink to the document. Another signer, Lyman Hall, represented Georgia at the Continental Congress, but was elected to the state legislature, later became a judge, and was also called upon to represent Connecticut at the Second Continental Congress. In fact, his fellow delegates in Philadelphia thought so well of Samuel Huntington that they elected him president of the congress at the time of the adoption of the Articles of Confederation on March 1, 1781. Technically, therefore, many regard Samuel Huntington as the first true President of the United States! Later appointed Chief Justice of the Superior Court in Connecticut, Samuel Huntington soon was elected republic: the Articles of Association (1774); the Declaration of Independence (1776); the Articles of Confederation (1781); and the Constitution (1787). The father of 15 children, Sherman began his adult life as a shoemaker and farmer. Later, he studied law and was elected to the state legislature. Sherman also served as a judge in the Connecticut Superior Court for 23 years from 1766-1789. He served on the committee charged with drafting the Declaration and was well regarded by his peers. John Adams said of him: "Sherman is as firm in the cause of American was born and raised in Wallingford and had studied medicine at Yale.

Samuel Huntington was born in Windham on July 3, 1731; studied law as a young man, and eventually became a lawyer in Norwich. Quiet by nature, Huntington distinguished himself through his hard work and sense of integrity. Eventually, he was governor in 1786, a position he held for the next 10 years. Huntington died while still governor at the age of 65 on January 5, 1796. Governor Huntington and his wife, Martha, were buried in Norwich.

The oldest of the four Connecticut delegates was Roger Sherman of New Haven. Sherman was born on April 19, 1721. He is the only American to have signed all four founding documents of the young independence as Mount Atlas." He later played a key role at the Constitutional Convention, as he was the moving force behind what has come to be known as the "Connecticut Compromise," the key to breaking a deadlock at the convention and enabling its adoption. Ever wonder why a Connecticut license

Calling All Knitters! An Update and Thanks

Editor's Note: The views stated here are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the editors of this newspaper. We welcome supporting or opposing views on any published item.

To the Editor:

My husband Ray and I left Haddam on May 27, 2022 for the Rosebud Reservation in South Dakota with a full van (also known as The White Buffalo) with optical supplies, optical equipment and huge black plastic bags of all sorts of donated, handcrafted knitted items. It took us three days but the ride was amazing! What a beautiful country we have! On May 31st, 28 volunteers: opticians, optometrists, ophthalmologists, photographers and others from all over the U.S. came together to set up the eye clinic. Our goal was to see 500 patients from June 1st to the 5th. At the end of the clinic, the total number of patients who got eyecare and eyeglasses ordered was 638!

Many thanks go out to all the knitters and crocheters who organized groups to help with this project (Knitters Unite 2022). So many neighbors from

We packed 104 blankets, 372 hats, 4 headbands, 286 scarves including sets, 9 sweaters/vests, 4 baby sweaters, 5 booties and socks, 44 mittens /gloves and miscellaneous clothing as well! Everyone was thrilled and amazed by the generosity and craftsmanship. Whatever was left was saved and will be distributed during the winter months. The children's items will be wrapped and distributed at their annual Children's Christmas party.

Thank you all so much for bringing smiles to so many of our fellow Americans and helping them keep warm this winter. We will be going back next year for June 2023.

The "Artists for World Peace, Native Eyes 2022" event can be viewed on Instagram, Facebook and in July sometime, You tube.

*With much appreciation,
Roe Dennis*

Food Scrap Waste Program Works!

Editor's Note: The views stated here are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the editors of this newspaper. We welcome supporting or opposing views on any published item.

To the Editor:

I've always been a kind of backyard composter. I say "kind of" because I don't do it for the soil. I do it because it's good for the environment and makes me feel a little less guilty about food waste. But the Transfer Station food scrap waste program has upped my game. I am excited about using it and here's why:

So much of my household waste can be composted there: Meats and bones, shellfish, fish, egg shells and all kinds of dairy products, fruits and veggies, bread, cereal, tea bags, coffee grounds and filters, soiled paper food wrappers, uncoated paper plates, fats, even paper towels!

Less weight from trash at the Transfer Station means less money we spend in tipping fees when our trash gets to its next destination. Lower fees there will keep our collective costs down. I'm sure you've heard that the Transfer Station pass is now $100. But you can get a free special pass just for the compost bin. You can also buy a "starter kit" at the Town Office Building for $25. It comes with a two- gallon screened basket for the counter, a roll of 25 compostable plastic bags to insert into the basket, and a 6 gallon bin for outdoors.

The program is managed by Blue Earth Compost. They have some great info on their website about the advantages of composting. Check out the program at Haddam.org or email HaddamSustainabilityCommittee@gmail.com.

plate says "Constitution State" on it? Thank Roger Sherman for that. Sherman died on July 23, 1793, at the age of 72. He is buried in the famous Grove Street Cemetery in New Haven.

Perhaps the least well-known signer from Connecticut was William Williams of Lebanon. Initially a shopkeeper, Williams later became town clerk of Lebanon and a state representative as well as a judge. When Oliver Wolcott became ill at the second Continental Congress, Williams was selected to replace him. He arrived in Philadelphia on July 28, 1776, and signed the Declaration on August 2.

Williams later served as a representative to the Connecticut convention to ratify the U.S. Constitution. Sent there to vote against its adoption, Williams decided instead that Connecticut would benefit from it, so he reversed course and voted for its adoption. Married to the daughter of Connecticut's first governor (John Trumbull), William and Mary Williams raised three children. William Williams lived to be the oldest of Connecticut's four delegates, dying at the age of 80 on August 2, 1811, 30 years to the day after he had signed the Declaration for Connecticut. He is buried in the Trumbull Cemetery in Lebanon.

The fourth Connecticut signer of the Declaration was Oliver Wolcott. Wolcott was born in Windsor on November 26, 1726, and attended Yale, graduating in 1746. After fighting in the French and Indian War, Wolcott moved to Litchfield at the age of 25. He married a woman named Laura Collins with whom he had five children. Wolcott was a state legislator and a delegate to the Second Continental Congress. After getting ill in June of 1776, Wolcott traveled back from Philadelphia to Connecticut. While passing through New York City, Wolcott witnessed the tearing down of a statue of King George III in the city. The head of the statue was sent back to England; Wolcott took the body of the statue back to Litchfield, had it melted down, and reformed the metal into more than 42,000 bullets that were used against the British. After recovering his health, Oliver Wolcott returned to Philadelphia, where he signed the Declaration in October of 1776. Because of his previous military experience, Wolcott was made a brigadier general and placed in command of 14 regiments that defended New York City. He later succeeded Samuel Huntington as governor in 1796 and remained governor until his death on December 1, 1797, at the age of 71. His son, Oliver Wolcott, Jr. was Secretary of the Treasury from 1795-1800. A state technical school today bears Wolcott's name. He is buried in East Cemetery in Litchfield.

Born April 12, 1724, Lyman Hall of Wallingford, moved to the South after studying medicine at Yale. Hall first settled in South Carolina, but he soon moved to Georgia, where he practiced medicine and owned a plantation. Hall was elected to represent Georgia at the Continental Congress. He volunteered to assist the Revolutionary Army with medical supplies. He, too, signed the Declaration, becoming the fifth Connecticut native to do so. Hall had to flee Georgia during the war for his own safety. He returned to Connecticut for a while, where his family hid him from the British. After the war, Hall returned to Georgia, where he spent the rest of his life. Lyman Hall died on October 19, 1790, at the age of 66. A public high school in Wallingford today bears his name.

Neither William Williams nor Oliver Wolcott were present in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, to vote on the acceptance of the Declaration of Independence; nevertheless, both men eventually signed their names to the document and incurred great personal risk by doing so. All five Connecticut natives who signed the Declaration distinguished themselves in many ways both in Philadelphia and in their native Nutmeg State. Their courage and integrity as public servants for the state and for the nation were exemplary and stand in sharp contrast to the narrowly focused vision of the special-interest-driven nature of too many modern politicians.

for one year at $2,000/month. We have the right to terminate the lease with three months' notice in the event we sell or lease the entire building.

Along that line, we had another group that educates special needs children express an interest in HES. They toured the facility earlier this month. We're waiting to hear back from them.

The Higganum Farmers Market kicked off its 2022 season on June 3rd. The market is open on Friday afternoon from 3:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

We're applying for a grant from the state to build a multi-generational park at HES to replace the existing and unsafe playground. A multi-generational park is more than just a playground or playscape for children. It provides activities for people of all ages and abilities. The grant request includes building a sidewalk from the school to Higganum Center. We're also seeking funding for a generator with the thought of using HES as an emergency shelter, cooling center, cold storage area for the food pantry and possibly a future senior and community center.

Rossi Property - We recently received the final environmental assessment and estimate of remediation costs from our consultants. We sent a copy to Rossi

Lumber Company and will be meeting with them to discuss moving forward.

Scovil Hoe Buildings (DOT Garage) - At the May town meeting voters unanimously approved purchasing the Scovil Hoe buildings, accepting the state grant for environmental remediation and the ultimate transfer to a developer, at which point the property becomes taxable. The developer will renovate and rent out the space. Subsequent to that meeting, I signed the purchase agreement with the state Department of Transportation, which is now going through the final review process by the state and the sales agreement with Parker Benjamin, the developer. I'm waiting for the final paperwork for the clean-up grant. I'm excited about this project. It will have a significant positive impact on revitalizing Higganum Center.

Higganum Cove - I'm very impressed with the work the Higganum Cove Advisory Committee is doing to oversee the preservation and improvement of this historic and environmental site. We hired Kent & Frost to help develop a master plan to make the cove an attractive town park for passive recreation and educational activities. Already there's a welcome/information sign at the cove and benches overlooking the foundations of one of Higganum's earliest mills.

“Waking Up to the Earth” Poetry Event at Haddam Meadows State Park

By Tom Piezzo, Brainerd Memorial Library Director

On a warm and sunny Sunday, 40 poetry lovers gathered at the peaceful Haddam Meadows State Park memorial butterfly garden on June 26 to enjoy an afternoon of nature-themed poetry. Starting with Connecticut State Poet Laureate Margaret Gibson, five accomplished poets, many laureates in their own towns, read selections from the anthology they co-authored, Waking Up to the Earth: Connecticut Poets in a Time of Global Climate Crisis. Haddam Poet Laureate Lorraine Riess led the event, and also shared her own poems. Lana Orphanides, Mary Guitar, Gwen Gunn likewise took a turn at the microphone with their inspiring, funny, thought-provoking and perceptive work. The Brainerd Memorial Library partnered on the program, and was the recipient of generous donations from the proceeds of the book sale and signing. Watch for a reprise of this unique cultural event next year, by popular demand!

Haddam Resident Authors New Book

By Tony Giamei

Vicki Harlow, a longtime Haddam resident, has published a new book on Amazon.

BOOKS, BITES AND MURDER is a unique mystery novel, spiked with family drama and a touch of romance. Lyme disease is referenced throughout the book, and many people have become ill due to this bug. The author was one of these victims many years ago. Few, if any, fiction books are on the market mentioning this disease. This story is inspiring and informative with a killer twist until the very last page. Taking place in Highland Falls, a small seaside town on the New England coastline, it is 167 pages long. Zoey Mitchell is the main character, a charismatic and determined young woman who was chronically afflicted by Lyme disease seven years ago. It portrays her struggle to live through and survive this ordeal. Zoey is well-liked in town as the former librarian and is now the proprietor of Sips and Swap. This breakfast and lunch eatery is adjoined by a book swap area for patrons. The mystery begins in the very first chapter when a body is found buried behind the Tuckerman Library. Although she resigned as the librarian a year ago, residents rely on Zoey and trust her judgment. Soon, people overrun her eatery, concerned about the murder in their town. The characters in this novel are real, as if you were in the room listening to, laughing or crying with them. Lots of humor is found throughout these pages and Zoey's three rescue cats are her true companions. While the mystery occurs in a seaside village in Connecticut, it also includes other interesting spots where key characters spend their lives. Traveling to London, St. Maarten and St. Barthelemy as the murder case is finally resolved makes this story appealing to readers.

Vicki Harlow has been writing since 1980. She was a former library director in Haddam and a Registrar of Voters. She loves animals and has integrated her pet cats into the new book. She is a published photographer, especially of animals, and has authored or contributed to more than 20 books. She worked for a publisher for several years, where she learned many aspects of publishing.
