HVFC Auxiliary Military Whist Game a Success!

By HVFC Auxiliary

On Tuesday evening, October 25, the Haddam Volunteer Fire Company Auxiliary hosted its Annual Military Whist Game at the Firehouse.

After a two-year hiatus due to the Covid-19 pandemic, members were ready, willing, and anxious to enjoy the evening.

So, you might wonder, "What is Military Whist?"

Military Whist is a highly organized and structured card game, similar to Setback. We can have up to 25 tables of 4 players each (the fire code in the community room allows for a maximum of 100 people seated at tables.) The players, in pairs, rotate around the room from table to table in a specific order after each hand is played.

Auxiliary members serve refreshments snacks, small sandwiches, crackers and cheese, fruit, cut-up vegetables, chips, and assorted dessert items. Beverages served include coffee, tea, lemonade, and water before the game begins, and some beverages until the end of the game.

The players each pay an entry fee, allowing them to play the game, enjoy the refreshments, and win prizes. They can also buy raffle tickets for the many prizes we collect during the year, which are available to be viewed prior to the beginning of the game.

This year tables were lined with gifts and baskets galore. Over 100 items were handed out to the players! Beautiful Mums donated by Halfinger Farms went to First Prize winners and flower centerpieces donated by Town & Country Nurseries adorned our tables.

Prizes included candles, gift baskets, games, candy dishes, gift certificates, glasses, household items, toiletries, a few tote bags with office supplies or school supplies or travel items, decorations, cans of coffee, paper towels, toilet paper, garbage bags, and dish towels.

Proceeds from past games have been used to help purchase gifts for the Annual Children's Christmas Party, as well as equipment our Firefighters might need to keep them safe on the job.

The HVFC Auxiliary would like to thank all who participated in the HVFC Auxiliary Military Whist Game!

Special thanks to:

Holiday Train Show at Connecticut River Museum Opens November 22

*By Jane Raunikar,
Connecticut River Museum*

The family-friendly Holiday Train Show exhibit is back at the Connecticut River Museum in Essex for its twenty-ninth year. The members-only opening and the Museum Shop Member Holiday Sale are on Monday, November 21, at 5:00 p.m. The exhibit opens to the public on Tuesday, November 22nd.

Train artist Steve Cryan brings more trains, new scenery, and lots of surprises to be found in the fully operational 26-foot model train layout. The photo above, "Working Boats in Harbor," is a nod to the historic traffic along the river. Visitors are challenged with the "I SPY" scavenger hunts for objects hidden both in the train layout and the entire third floor. The American Flyer and Lionel train layout is specifically designed for toddler-size viewing. An outing to this locomotive extravaganza is perfect for train fans and River fans alike. Nestled among the tracks are local Connecticut landmarks, handcrafted by Cryan. Sponsored by Lorensen Auto Group and Webster Bank, the exhibit runs through February 19, 2023.

"We look forward to welcoming guests to the museum for the 29th annual train show exhibit. Each year, this beloved tradition draws families who have made this show part of their holiday celebrations," shared Connecticut River Museum Marketing Director Jane Raunikar.

The Connecticut River Museum is located at 67 Main Street in Essex and is open Tuesday through Sunday from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. For more information, call 860-767-8269 or go to www.ctrivermuseum.org

The Infamous Elevens of The Great War

By Philip R. Devlin

Last Friday, November 11, was Veterans Day. November 11th used to be called "Armistice Day" because it was on this date in 1918 that an armistice to end World War I was signed in a railroad car in Compiègne, just outside Paris. But the armistice that was signed that day would prove to make the numbers 11-11-11 unintentionally infamous for all time.

News of the ceasefire spread quickly by telegraph to all parts of the world. Italian opera singer Enrico Caruso got up early in New York City to celebrate and sang the American national anthem in English from his hotel balcony. Citizens in Windsor Locks ran along Main Street shouting, clanging pots and pans, and then burned Kaiser Wilhelm in effigy. Similar acts of celebration occurred throughout the country.

But the celebration was premature. The war had not really ended; it had about six hours to go, as the ceasefire was to begin at 11:00 a.m. on the 11th day of the 11th month — 11-11-11. The Allied signers of the armistice thought it would be more memorable if the peace began at 11. Little did they realize the horrible consequences their desire for numerical symmetry would have upon the lives of thousands of people.

Historian Joseph Persico has done extensive research about the final six hours of the Great War. Persico has found that more than 10,000 were killed, wounded, or missing on both sides during those last six hours. That's more than the total casualties for both sides during the D-Day invasion of June 6, 1944 during World War II!

American AEF Cmdr. Gen. John J. Pershing, who opposed the armistice, sent out an order to observe the ceasefire at 11:00 a.m. Pershing's orders did not specify what to do between 5:00 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. Nine of the sixteen American divisional commanders, therefore, pressed on with their attacks against the Germans that morning. Seven commanders saw no point in putting their men's lives at risk to take land that would be theirs to control in just a couple of hours, and refused to engage the enemy.

In one of the more peculiar attacks on the last morning of the war, Gen. William M. Wright, commander of the 89th Division, ordered his troops to take the French village of Stenay from the Germans. Wright had heard that Stenay had bathing facilities, and he wanted to capture them for his unit to enjoy. It cost his division 300 casualties. Stenay was the very last village captured by the Americans in World War I. Wright was replaced as commander the next day.

One of the divisions that continued to fight was the 26th, or "Yankee Division." The 26th consisted almost entirely of soldiers from the six New England states including, of course, Connecticut, and had been engaged in battle more days than any other American division except for the 1st Army Division.

More than 60,000 Connecticut men fought in the 26th, including about 50 men from Haddam and Killingworth. Nearly 1,700 in the division were killed and more than 7,300 were wounded. At 9:00 a.m. on the 11th of November, the Yankee Division was ordered into battle; at 9:10 a.m. that order was rescinded.

However, at 9:30, the 26th was once again ordered into battle. They fought from 9:30 a.m. until the ceasefire at 11:00 a.m. and suffered 120 casualties.

Almost certainly, the very last Connecticut man to die in World War I was Cpl. Harry W. Houghtaling of Chester. Houghtaling was part of the 307th Infantry Regiment of the 77th Division — mostly a New York unit. He was killed in action that morning while attacking the Germans. Houghtaling was the only man from Chester killed in the Great War, and he died with just an hour or so to go before the ceasefire.

The fate of Pvt. Henry Gunther of the 79th Division is even more poignant.

Gunther, from Maryland and of German descent, had endured a great deal of anti-German prejudice in the service. While advancing toward Metz on the morning of the 11th, Gunther charged a German machine-gun emplacement and was shot through the head and killed at 10:59 a.m. — just one minute before the armistice took effect. He was the last American killed in action during The Great War.

Upon learning of the harsh terms imposed upon Germany by the armistice, a young German Corporal named Adolf Hitler burst into tears. He vowed that he would devote the rest of his life to erasing that shame. When the Nazis conquered France in 1940, Hitler made the French capitulate in Compiègne, in the exact same railway car used to sign the armistice in 1918. Then he had the railroad car towed to Berlin and blown up.

The German peace delegation had arrived in Compiègne on November 8th. Their lead negotiator, Matthias Erzberger, suggested that a ceasefire be immediately imposed while the two sides worked out the details of the armistice. French Marshal Ferdinand Foch, head negotiator for the Allies, adamantly refused, so the war continued for the next three days resulting in more than 21,600 casualties— dead, wounded, and missing. Three days later, the Allies insisted on establishing an 11:00 a.m. end to the hostilities on the 11th day of the 11th month so as to associate three 11's with the war's end; that insistence has made 11-11-11 an infamous combination for all time.

MCCC Announces Retirement of Larry McHugh

By Haley Stafford,
Middlesex County Chamber of Commerce

The Board of Directors of the Middlesex County Chamber of Commerce has announced that Larry McHugh will be retiring from the Chamber at the end of the year, and the Board will appoint Johanna Bond the Chamber's next President/CEO.

"We are extremely grateful for Larry's tremendous leadership of the organization and his strong advocacy for the businesses and communities of Middlesex County. In his 39 years, Larry has built the Chamber to be one of the largest in the state and one that members have come to rely on to effectively represent their interests," said Kristen Roberts, Chair of the Chamber's Board of Directors.

"It has been a wonderful 39 years working with an outstanding staff, volunteers and fantastic Board Chairs to create the most vibrant and largest Chamber in Connecticut," said McHugh. "It is now time to move on and spend more time with my wife, Patty, and our family."

Larry McHugh first joined the Chamber in 1983 and has served as the organization's top executive responsible for all aspects of the Chamber, including member outreach and support, operations and financial performance for the Chamber's nearly 2,000 members throughout 14 communities in the Greater Middlesex County community, including Rocky Hill.

"Larry, who has worked to make the Middlesex County Chamber of Commerce the best in the state and one of the most recognized in the country, represents the best of a community leader," said State Sen. Norm Needleman, who has worked with Larry as the owner of a local business, Tower Laboratories, and as First Selectman for the town of Essex and as State Senator representing communities in the 33rd District. Needleman added, "Larry has been a trusted friend, a mentor and a colleague who has dedicated his life to building an organization that has supported businesses in Middlesex County for decades, and with that strong foundation, will continue to be the vital Chamber serving its members that we have all become accustomed to."

The Executive Committee has been working closely with McHugh on succession planning and is very excited that Johanna Bond will be appointed as President and CEO of the Chamber, effective January 1, 2023.

Roberts continued, "The Board is thrilled that Johanna accepted the new role and we are confident she will provide continuity and strong leadership for the organization. She has proven to be an advocate for businesses and to consistently deliver a high level of service for chamber members."

"I am very excited to step up and lead this amazing Chamber after being mentored by Larry for over 30 years," said Bond, the Chief Operating Officer of the Middlesex County Chamber of Commerce. "I am honored to work side-by-side with outstanding colleagues and volunteers, and together, we will continue to build upon the successful foundation Larry established. We are on the move to keep the sun shining in Middlesex County."

Bond first joined the chamber in 1994 and has taken on increasing levels of responsibility through her career, most recently serving as the Chief Operating Officer. She has led many key programs and projects throughout her 28-year career at the Chamber and is ideally positioned as Larry's successor.

McHugh added, "I'm very happy Johanna Bond will take over the leadership role at the Chamber as I retire. Johanna is smart, positive, dedicated and committed to moving the Chamber forward."

Coffee House/Game Night at Higganum Congregational: December 9

By David McComas

The United Congregational Church of Haddam and Higganum is launching a new venture. We are planning a fun program that will include musical entertainment as well as games and socialization. Coffee, tea and refreshments will be available. We will ask that those who attend participate in our 50/50 raffle.

Music will be provided by a small ensemble, playing folk, pop and light rock favorites. We will be encouraging local musicians who wish to participate to contact us in advance to include them in the program.

Coffee House and Game Nights will be held on the second Friday of each month; the initial Coffee House night will kick off on Friday, December 9, from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. at Higganum Congregational Church. The church social room will be used for this activity. Our building is accessible to all with disabilities. No alcohol is permitted at this venue.

Older Workers' Compensation Claims: Forgotten But Not Gone?

By Attorney Alexander J. Sarris

One of the biggest misconceptions about workers' compensation claims is that they automatically "close" after being dormant for an extended period of time. I often encounter injured workers who have approved workers' compensation claims dating back at least ten years (or older) without any recent treatment or new developments in several years that have been informed by an insurance adjuster the claim is closed.

Don't be fooled. Some basic questions that help clarify whether your older workers' compensation claim is officially closed are as follows:

- Has your employment ended with the company that you were employed with at the time of your work injury?
- Have you entered into a full and final settlement agreement (known as a Stipulation) for which you received a lump sum payment and a copy of the settlement agreement?
- Have you completed a trial (known as a Formal Hearing) with a decision rendered by an Administrative Law Judge dismissing your workers' compensation claim?

If you answered no to all of the above questions your workers' compensation claim is most likely dormant or inactive but not closed. Even if you did answer yes to any of those questions you may still have an open claim. To help guide you in assessing your older workers' compensation claim, please contact us right away.

PETS

Find a Fur Baby: Camo!

By Judith Levin

I don't understand why poor Camo is still at the shelter. He is so handsome, lovable and is a great boy.

He has lived with another large male dog and is good with other large dogs. Small dogs are not his cup of tea. Kitties are not one of his faves either. I have to say he really loves kids, but over the age of 10. He loves adults, BUT can be a bit nippy with some men.

He loves to go riding in the car, play, run around, take long walks, and cuddle. Camo is housebroken, crate trained, has great leash manners, and knows basic commands. He is up to date with his shots, neutered, weighs 70 pounds, and is 5 years and 2 months old.

If interested in Camo, please apply at www.brasscityrescue.org
